This collaboration ale is one we're proud to share with our Swiss friends at BFM. Spike and Jérôme traveled to each other's brewery to create this special beer, released individually in the two countries. This one, brewed at Terrapin in September 2011, has been aging gracefully on American oak Bourbon barrels. Expect the oaky-alcohol smell on the nose, with rich, dark fruit aroma following. This brew will be warm in the mouth, resinous, but not too sweet or sticky. Pull out your oversized wine glasses and raise a toast to the approaching fall season with friends.

Some think that barley wines are meant to be savored alone. For the hungry, we suggest a charcuterie plate with figs and jam.
